DESIGN JUSTICE: THE EDUCATION TO ACTION PIPELINE

Our mission is to empower youth to affect change in their community through design. These learning sessions enable students to learn about the built environment from architects, designers, and planners. NOMA advocates for equity and design excellence, and aims to foster the next

SERVING A DIVERSE POPULATION OF UNDERREPRESENTED STUDENTS

Project Pipeline prepares students for college and life beyond. They will develop skills and tools to contribute to their community. Our initiative enables youth to grasp the significance of architecture in their daily lives--culturally, socially, and historically.

HOW WE DO IT

We guide students through all stages of design using provoking and fun exercises. Students investigate through drawing and model building, analyze through diagramming and research, and engage through interviews. By the program's conclusion, students present a fully realized project that addresses a social need for their city.
